Keymacro is the ultimate shortcut application for Windows. It allows you to define any shortcut key sequence that can be used for any application or Windows system action. It is a universal application: it is useful to have a "command" shortcut key defined for any application. For example you can set shortcut to open a folder as Windows Explorer (CTRL-F), to open a folder as your favorite application (F3), to open a folder as command prompt (CTRL-P) and much more. In addition, you can set the default hot key of an application (to open an application, to minimize it, to print, to open a web page and much more). KEYMACRO: Keyboard Shortcut Creator allows you to create hot keys for all the actions that are supported by the program (or for the actions that can be done by a program through a hot key). In addition, it is possible to configure the programs themselves as hot keys, to define a hot key to enter or to leave a program. KEYMACRO allows you to activate any of the program or system actions that are supported by Keymacro. For example, if you define "Ctrl+Tab" for a folder, the program will be activated when you press Ctrl+Tab and your cursor will be moved to the folder. If you are tired to press your keyboard's windows keys or if you are looking for an alternative to a mouse, you have a great utility. Keymacro allows you to define any hot key sequence for the Windows commands, to the applications you use, to the windows you use, to the windows you minimize and to the documents you open. Keymacro works on any Windows operating system: it is an universal utility and it works in all versions from Windows 95 to the current version. Keymacro uses an XML file to store the hot key definitions. The file is automatically updated every time you install a new application, every time you minimize or restore a window or every time you change the windows registry. Keymacro's features: * create hot keys and hot key combinations for all the Windows commands, for all the Windows applications, for the Microsoft Office applications, for the Windows Explorer, for the built-in Windows tools and for all the documents you open. * create hot keys for the applications and windows that you use the most: you can create a shortcut key to open a folder, to open a program, to minimize/restore a window, to print a <https://www.rentb1.net/wp-content/uploads/2022/05/bentrand.pdf>
